

Cost of Attendance (COA)

The Financial Aid Cost of Attendance (COA) is an estimate of the educational costs for the academic year and is used for calculating a student's Federal Student Aid (FSA) program fund eligibility.

Ross University School of Medicine includes the following components in the COA:

- Tuition
- Fees
- Books, Course Materials, Supplies and Equipment
- Food and Housing
- Health Insurance
- Transportation
- Exam Fees
- Personal Expenses
- Residency Travel
- Loan Fees

Ross Med reviews the COA annually and adjusts the COA components based on institutional information and economic data.

The following allowable charges may be added to the COA within pre-defined caps if accompanied by requested documentation. Eligibility for additional loan funding to pay for these allowable charges depends on additional financial aid eligibility after the initial offer is determined. Students who seek an increase in the COA for any of the allowable charges below must start by discussing their financial aid options with a Ross Med financial aid advisor.

- Computer Purchase
- Program required residency and field experience fees, transportation, and lodging
- Dependent Care Expenses associated with time in school
- Disability Related Educational Expenses not covered by a third party
- Doctoral research and editing

Ross Med has staff dedicated to providing financial counseling in order to promote financial awareness, advise students on repayment and debt forgiveness options, inform students of scholarship opportunities, and encourage responsible borrowing.
